MORSE PLUMBING COMPANY LLC

Upgrade your home's comfort, health, and efficiency with two essential upgrades: a brand new high efficiency water heater and a whole-home water filtration system. Your old water heater may be quietly costing you more than you realize. If it is over 8-12 years old, showing signs of inconsistent hot water, strange noises, rusty discoloration, leaks, or spiking energy bills, it's time for a replacement. A new water heater upgrade delivers:

- Reliable hot water water, increased hot water for showers without frustrating cold surprises
- Significant energy savings — modern models are far more efficient, slashing your utility bills
- Longer lifespan and fewer breakdowns protecting your home from potential flooding or costly emergency repairs
- Improved performance and peace of mind for your family's daily routine

Pair it with a premium water filtration system to take your upgrade to the next level. Unfiltered tap water often carries sediment, minerals, chlorine, heavy metals, and other contaminants that damage your plumbing, appliances, your skin, or even your hair.

Here is why a water filtration system is a game changer — especially for your new water heater.

- Protects your investment — Filters capture debris, silt, and minerals before they build up as limescale inside your water heater tank or in your tankless heating manifold. This would prevent reduced efficiency, overheating, premature failure, and extends your new water heater's lifespan significantly
- Saves money long term — less scale means your water heater works less hard, lowering energy costs and reducing needed repairs.
- Healthier skin and hair — Chlorine and harsh contaminants in unfiltered water damage your hair and skin in many different ways. Clean filtered water helps with healthier skin, silky hair, hydrated skin, and prevents residue or buildup in showers
- Cleaner, better-tasting water throughout your home for drinking, cooking, and bathing

Do not settle for outdated, inefficient systems that waste energy and compromise your comfort and health. Invest in a new water heater backed by a professional water filtration system today enjoy hotter showers, softer skin, stronger hair, lower bills, and appliances that last longer.
